

COUNCIL SESSION
MONDAY EVENING

A regular meeting of the City Council was held last Monday evening, August 22.

A communication was received from the Veterans' Welfare Board, requesting the cancellation of certain taxes now appearing on the tax records against property owned by the board. This request was granted.

The fire committee reported that the temporary fire house, in the newly annexed Colma district, is finished and ready for the housing of Station No. 6 apparatus. The clerk was instructed to send a letter of thanks to M. Belli & Co., for the use of this building.

At the meeting of August 8, representatives and an attorney for the American Greyhound Association were present and asked for a permit to establish breeding kennels and a race course within the limits of Daly City. The matter was laid over until this meeting, as the applicants failed to submit any plans as to construction of buildings and location. The application was placed on file.

Two requests for permission to operate coal yards on Mission street were granted. The present zoning ordinance does not prohibit coal yards in the business district.

The monthly bills were read and ordered paid.

LUCKY SAN FRANCISCAN WINS POPULAR LOCAL GIRL

Miss Virginia Corish, daughter of Mrs. Mary Corish, of San Diego avenue, became the bride of William Webb, of San Francisco, in Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, on Sunday, August 14, at 4:45 o'clock. Miss Rita Corish, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and the groom was attended by Peter Conci.

The bride wore the conventional white satin gown and veil and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias. The brides' attendant wore a beautiful pale blue taffeta gown, trimmed in pink, and she also wore a pink turban and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

After the wedding ceremony a dinner was served in the home of the bride's mother for the immediate relatives. After a honeymoon trip to be spent in Yosemite Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Webb will make their home on San Diego avenue, near Parkview avenue. Their many friends wish them much happiness.

RECENT BRIDE ENTERTAINED AT AFTERNOON TEA PARTY

Mrs. Robert Pool, formerly Miss Mildred Luce, of San Francisco, a June bride, was the guest of honor at a recipe shower and an afternoon of tea at the home of Mrs. W. L. Lewis, of Bellevue avenue, on Thursday afternoon of last week. Each guest brought two recipes for Mrs. Pool's recipe cabinet, which was given to the happy bride by Mrs. Lewis. Among the guests were Mrs. Lorraine Wall and little daughter Audrey, Mrs. Carter and daughter Frances, Mrs. Roberta Stein and daughter Betty Lou, Mrs. E. Barazoto, Mrs. C. Anderson and daughter Frances, Mrs. Rose Abbott, Mrs. Kochman and daughter Ruth, Mrs. Grace L. Augustin and daughter Myrtle, Mrs. F. Watson and daughter Priscilla, Mrs. Dora Holmberg, Miss Hester Blaylock, Joan Tway, Ernestine Cuneo, and Dorothy Lewis.

GENERAL PERSHING P. T. A.
SPONSORS DINNER AND WHIST

A Jiggs dinner and whist will be given by the General Pershing P. T. A. on Saturday night, August 27, from 6 P. M. to 8 P. M., at the school. The price, including dinner and whist, is 50 cents; children 15 cents. Mrs. Urton, the new president, invites all to come and spend an inexpensive and pleasant evening.

The first regular meeting of the P. T. A. was held last week. Mrs. Urton, the new president, was in charge. Work for the coming year was discussed and the members are looking forward to a very pleasant and busy term.

A piano was loaned to the P. T. A., and this well help in making the program more interesting.

VERNON REHAUME PASSES ON

Vernon J. Rehaume, of Los Olivos avenue, passed away last Monday in University hospital. Vernon is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rehaume, and a sister, Viola B. Rehaume. He was the beloved nephew of Mrs. Anna Poket and Mr. and Mrs. William Smith. The funeral was conducted from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co., last Wednesday morning at 9:45 o'clock, thence to Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, where a mass was celebrated for the repose of his soul. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery.

LEGION MEMBERS TO NAME OFFICERS

Members of Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, will hold a meeting this Friday evening, August 26, in the Woodrow Wilson grammar school. Election of officers will take place, and the delegates to the State convention will render their report.

At the Oakland convention, Comrade Crane of the local Post was elected First Vice-Commander for the Eighth district. No doubt they thought, "a big man for a big job."

The Post's newly organized indoor baseball team journeyed down the peninsula last Sunday and defeated San Mateo Post No. 82 by a score of 3 to 2. Not bad at all for a beginning.

Construction bids for the new Diagnostic Hospital at San Francisco will be solicited about September 1, and construction will probably get under way about October 1. The hospital should be ready for occupancy on June 1, 1933. There is no apparent reason for long delay in commencement of construction on this hospital.

The French government has voted $125,000 to pay expenses of a party of French veterans who will tour the United States in September. According to advance news, they are to visit California and the coast, but the exact date has not yet been announced.

The following, taken from the annual report of the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion, should constitute a real Americanism challenge to every one of the Legion's 10,400 Posts:

"Within the walls of our schoolrooms are treasured the jewels of the nation. Let's help to safeguard this treasure! Let's do everything in our power to prevent a contamination of our youth, sought for by those who work under the 'red' banner of catastrophe! Let's make it our job to see to it that the Stars and Stripes float above every schoolhouse in America, and that within the walls of these structures real Americanism is taught!"

The American Legion says: "America's greatest gift to all citizens is the right of franchise. Our government is just what we make it. If we don't go to the polls and vote, we have no kick coming if the country is misgoverned. Vote at the primary election this month. The Legion does not tell you how to vote—but vote."

Don't forget the whist party to be given by Daly City Post on Wednesday evening, August 31, at Eagles Hall. Come and spend a pleasant evening.

SUPERB PITCHING BRINGS
VICTORY FOR ALL-STARS

Behind the superb pitching of Earl Johnson, who struck out twelve batters and allowed but five hits, three being of the infield variety, and Roy Kelly, who poled out a home run in the ninth inning, the Daly City All-Stars defeated the Marina baseball team by a 5-3 score last Sunday in a game played in San Francisco. B. Kelly and Long starred at bat and in the field, collecting two hits each and having several chances in the field.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL PASSES ON

Miss Grace Marie Templin, of Peoria street, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Templin, passed away at the Community hospital on Wednesday of last week after a long illness. Grace leaves besides her parents a devoted brother, Barney Templin, to mourn her untimely death. She was the beloved granddaughter of Mrs. Karin Templin, and was a native of San Francisco. The funeral was conducted from the W. C. Lasswell mortuary chapel last Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment was in Cypress Lawn Memorial Park. Grace had been a student at Jefferson Union high school and had her health permitted would have graduated with the June class of 1932.

HICKEY'S ELECTION WILL CONTINUE
COUNTY SOCIAL WELFARE PROGRAM

Many years ago a great Roman humanitarian coined a new proverb, which may be roughly translated as follows: "Everything that touches human problems finds sympathetic response in my heart." These words apply very appropriately to the character and life work of Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, whose name will be submitted to the people again at the Primary Election next Tuesday.

Social service has always attracted Mr. Hickey and he has made good use of every opportunity to serve his fellow men. This principle has guided his private life in many ways unknown to the general public, and it has also been characteristic of his official service that he has constantly endeavored to think of the rights and to improve the condition of other people.

THOMAS L. HICKEY

The Social Service Department of county work has provided him with a suitable field for the exercise of his natural sympathy with human problems. It will be remembered particularly that his earnest work several years ago assisted materially in the establishment of the County Hospital at Beresford. He has continued to display the warmest interest in the work of that excellent institution.

In this reference to Mr. Hickey's social welfare work we are reminded of a comment made several years ago by a former resident of San Mateo county. He referred to the quotation that there is nothing more gentle and yet more powerful than the tenderness of a strong man, and stated that this seemed to apply very remarkably to Mr. Hickey. Behind the vigor and force which make up his dominant personality lies a great heart, filled with mellow human kindness, quick and ready to respond to every human appeal.

Mr. Hickey is thoroughly acquainted with every part and corner of San Mateo county. He has studied its needs, encouraged its growth, and has never ceased to plan for further expansion. During the sixteen full and useful years of his career as Supervisor he has watched and toiled for its development with all the pride and loyalty which every good business man displays as his projects mature and succeed. His very life is bound up with its progress and his vigor and wisdom have become part of its equipment.

During the period of his service he has advanced from the years of young manhood to the prime of life and to the peak of power and usefulness. He has been acquiring knowledge and wider experience with the process of the years and each has been dedicated loyally to the service of the county. To his countless friends he has always seemed like some great patriot in his attitude to the county of his choice. His unchanging devotion to its interests, his invincible zeal and his unquestioned capacity for doing big things have made him a real institution in himself throughout the Peninsula.

Viewing the present campaign from the people's standpoint, we know that his re-election is not only desirable but essential. We need big men, men of vision and strength, men of victorious courage, and we have found all these qualities in him.

We need men whose record shines out across the years without stain or blemish. The fierce light of criticism has failed to reveal any single action or policy of his which is not all manly, unselfish and sincere.

Some men are born to be leaders and destined to stand out among their contemporaries. Mr. Hickey belongs to this class; he is a leader in thought and action. Endowed by nature with great strength of body, gifted with keen and broad mentality, he has offered this splendid combination of power to the people of this township. He has been a valiant crusader for their rights and benefit, and has borne their banner in many a battle. He has been a veritable "happy warrior" who has never met defeat. Even his few opponents admit his greatness. The only criticism they have been able to invent has been based upon a few poor scrambled figures, without truth, point or meaning.

As we thus voice our profound confidence in Mr. Hickey and urge his re-election as Supervisor, we are glad to supplement our testimony with the further evidence displayed in the tremendous volume of hearty support which has been given his candidature. The interest and loyalty of hosts of volunteers in his cause have surprised even the most experienced campaign workers. The people everywhere have recognized and hailed the worth and greatness of their present Supervisor and are preparing to carry him on the crest of their enthusiasm to unforgettable triumph.

LAFAYETTE CLUB ENDORSES
SUPERVISOR THOMAS HICKEY

Lafayette Club No. 4, San Mateo county, recently endorsed the candidacy of Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey for re-election, according to word received from Rene Gendot, secretary of the Lafayette Club. The members of the club will be found working for the re-election of the popular Supervisor of the First township.

LOCAL BALL TEAM
WINS FAST GAME

Macy Movers of Oakland and the Daly City Eagles' baseball teams put on a snappy exhibition for the fans that turned out last Sunday at the Jefferson Union high school grounds, the Eagles winning by a score of 8-6. But the victory came only after a hard fought game in which both of the teams showed plenty of fight.

Babe Perotti's hitting was responsible for four of the home boys' runs, while Sam Hawley, pinch-hitting for the home boys in the seventh inning, drove in what proved to be the winning run. The crowd gave the Little Giant, as he is called, a great hand. They have great confidence in him.

Creighton Davies started his first game as a pitcher for the Eagles, and allowed but two earned runs. His control was a little off, due to his long lay-off from pitching, but he twirled a great game. Smith and Walsh each garnered two hits.

For the visitors it must be said that never before has such a snappy bunch appeared on the local diamond, all young players, the oldest being 19. Mr. Macy, who sponsors the team and is also manager, made a fine impression on our baseball fans. Desimone, at third base, and Goulart, catcher, were their outstanding performers in Sunday's game.

The Daly City Eagles baseball team wishes to thank all those who helped make their whist party at Eagles Hall last Monday such a success. The boys had a full house. Dr. Callen's haywire orchestra played for the dancing after the whist.

Next Sunday the Daly City Eagles will play the Baumgarten Brothers' nine at 2 o'clock at the high school grounds.

DISSENSION EVIDENT IN VOTERS' LEAGUE

The following letter has been received by the publisher of the Record, with the request that it be published: Daly City, Cal., August 24, 1932.

Mr. J. J. Fahey, Jr., Secretary Voters League of Daly City, 6276 Mission Street, Daly City.

Dear Sir: This letter is a request that my name be dropped from the membership roll of the Voters League of Daly City and an explanation of the reason for my request, to which I feel you are entitled.

As you know, for the past few weeks I have been a member of the campaign committee of the League, at my own request, and have actively engaged in campaigning for the League's sponsored candidates, particularly Mr. Witt, whom the League is backing for Supervisor against Thos. Hickey. Being a new comer in the town I was forced to rely on instructions given me by the leaders of the League and by Mr. Witt. As I look back over the campaign work I have done I find that in some cases I have been told to tell certain voters things which were not true with the apparent intention of winning their support by deceiving them. That you may know just what I mean, I refer particularly to a Mrs. Collyott on Beppler street, to whom Mr. Witt sent me and told me to say that I had been sent by Danny O'Neal with a particular request that she and her husband vote for Mr. Witt. I also refer to Mrs. Hailer on Hanover street, to whom I was told to tell a similar story, using the name of Ed Bryant in this case, and other similar instances.

As I had been told of the urgent need for a change in government I was persuaded to stretch a point in such cases, but this, coupled with the continued mud slinging at public officials, whether candidates for office or not, and finally capped by the, to me, disgraceful episode at the last public League meeting; I have reference to the talk made there by a little girl about six years old who said in so many words that one of our public officials is a dishonest

BEST HORSES FOR TANFORAN MEET

High class thoroughbreds are coming to Tanforan for the Fall meeting from East, North and South. Applications for accommodations for candidates for the rich stakes of the session to open the latter part of September have been received at the office of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association, indicating the widest interest throughout the country in the coming racing.

In keeping with the traditions of Tanforan a stakes program that appeals to owners of the best horses has been prepared. The features will begin on the first Saturday of the period of the sport and continue each week throughout the thirty-three days scheduled for the meeting.

At the top of the list of features, the San Francisco Handicap, the most important race in the Fall of the last two years, will be renewed, this time at nine furlongs, a distance that promises to bring together the best band of stakers ever to face the barrier at the Peninsula course. Heretofore the San Francisco has been run at one mile and a sixteenth.

Of equal value to the San Francisco is the Pacific Coast Breeders Association Handicap. Each of these two features has the substantial sum of $5,000 added. The Breeders Handicap is for two-year-olds foaled west of the Continental Divide and has been won in previous seasons by such well known gallopers as John W. Marchbank's De Swasey and Bill Hartman's Bahamas.

Renewals of races run last Fall in addition to the San Francisco and the Breeders bring the number of stakes up to ten, all of which promise to draw even better class than in other years when the standard was remarkably high.

Important events in the autumn will be A. B. Spreckels Memorial, San Mateo, Angelo J. Rossi, Alameda County, California, San Bruno, Elks and Farewell Handicaps.

In order to encourage the breeding of the blood horse in this state, the Breeders Association has decided to limit two of the handicaps, the Alameda County at one mile and a quarter, and the San Bruno at one mile and three-sixteenths, to horses foaled within the confines of California. It is confidently expected this experiment will be greeted with high acclaim by the men owning farms in various sections of the state.

The "California" races will furnish a true test of not only the speed but the stamina of native sons and native daughters. It takes a real stayer to score at either one mile and three-sixteenths or ten furlongs. Two-year-olds are eligible to these events and it may be some one will have a precocious youngster that will be saddled for one or the other of the long distance contests.

Old-timers tell of the two-year-old Lissak at the Bay District track winning at a mile and a quarter from older horses of class late in the year. It may be there will be another Lissak in one of the barns down at San Bruno.

man and tells lies; has caused me to feel out of step with the League. I have children and I think one of the most important things I can teach them is to respect older people and people in authority.

Such plans and policies are, I believe, responsible for the dissension and distrust which I have found to exist among the leaders of the League. If what I have been told while a member of the League is true then there is room for improvement in the county and city government, but I don't think improvement can be hoped for from men who believe in such tactics as mentioned above.

I have written this long letter to you so you can see just how I feel, and from my contact with the membership of the League I am sure many who know the whole story are also disappointed.

I feel the people I have personally called on are entitled to know the way I feel, and so I am sending a copy of this letter to the editor of the local newspaper and asking him to publish it.

Yours very truly,

ALBERT FOURNIER.

COMMENDS HOSPITAL STAFF

Thomas N. Tromberg, of 205 Los Banos avenue, has recently returned from a stay at the San Mateo county hospital. Mr. Tromberg is on the road to rapid recovery after a most serious operation, and is loud in his praise of the efficient staff of doctors carrying on the surgical work, as well as the adequate number and attentiveness of nurses engaged there. Mr. Tromberg says everything at this institution is just perfect, and he feels it to be a worthy memorial to those whose thoughtfulness for the comforts of humanity has given us this splendid institution.

A DICTATOR'S MAXIMS

Many and varied opinions have been expressed concerning Mussolini, the Italian dictator, some believing him to be the greatest leader of his generation, others condemning him as a tyrant and menace to the world's peace.

Whatever one's estimate of him may be, it can not be denied that he has maintained a firm grip on his country since he rose to power ten years ago. While he talks a good deal, he is essentially a man of action. He is fond of uttering terse maxims touching many subjects. We quote a few to give some insight into his character:

"It is not enough to seem sincere—one must be sincere."

"Intelligent pessimism is much better than unintelligent optimism."

"Italy is too poor to indulge in bad government."

"I don't believe in conferences. I believe in work. Italy is at work."

"I prefer a platoon of police who can act to a crowd of collegians who can but debate."

"The training that counts for most is that which equips us to cope with things that are going wrong."

"We are not concerned exclusively with the schools. The theater, the concert hall, the museums, all contribute to our education. Training does not end on graduation day. All things are school to him who is teachable."

Few will deny that there is a lot of wisdom and sound philosophy in those maxims.

THE FIRST HELLO GIRL

The world's first telephone girl, who began work in the old Nassau exchange in New York on September 21, 1878, lived until a few days ago, when she passed away at the age of 74. She was Miss Mary Beatrice Kennedy, who was given a job when a boy in the exchange was discharged "for swearing at an angry subscriber."

So courteous and efficient did Miss Kennedy prove that girl operators became the rule, as they have remained until this day.

Working hours were long in 1878, and Miss Kennedy was on duty daily from 8 until 6, climbing six flights of stairs to reach her switchboard. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, often visited the exchange, and Thomas A. Edison sometimes accompanied him. But as Miss Kennedy told a reporter shortly before her death, "We didn't pay so much at-

COLLEGE HONOR CODE

Many interesting stories are told of the working of the honor code at Washington and Lee University, where it was established by General Lee when he became president of the school in 1867.

No supervision of students is exercised during examinations, yet cheating is virtually unknown. Nothing is locked up about the institution; books, articles of clothing and all sorts of property are left anywhere with the assurance that they will not be disturbed.

Several students help to pay their expenses by selling sandwiches, candy, apples and the like, but the sales are made without the presence of clerks. The articles for sale are displayed with price cards, and customers help themselves, placing their money in the cash box. During one football game more than $125 worth of lapel buttons were thus bought and paid for without the supervision of anyone, except that when the box was filled with bills a passing professor placed a weight on them to keep them from blowing away.

New students are thoroughly instructed in the requirements of the honor code and impressed with the importance of rigidly observing it, because, it is explained, this school is built around tradition. And the essence of that tradition is that "it's a pleasure to be a gentleman."

tention to Mr. Edison, for he wasn't so famous then."

Many thousands of "hello" girls have come and gone in the 54 years since Miss Kennedy became the first. Taken as a class, no more faithful employees ever served an exacting and sometimes unreasonable public. Many telephone girls have performed deeds of extraordinary heroism, remaining at their posts in time of fire, flood and other disaster, giving warnings that saved the lives of others at the risk of their own.

The telephone industry should erect a fitting memorial to her who was first of this noble company.

In states where capital punishment has been abolished the governors are saved the trouble of signing commutations.

Put a little sugar into what you say and take a little salt with what you hear.

It's a poor executive who can't take a vacation without being missed.

PARAGUAY'S "NAPOLEON"

Paraguay's present difficulty with Bolivia, resulting from a long standing boundary dispute, recalls the disastrous war led by Francisco Solano Lopez, who became dictator of Paraguay in 1862 and seemed ambitious to bring all South America under his rule.

Although Paraguay had a population of only about 1,200,000, Lopez in 1865 waged war on her three larger neighbors—Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay. In five years four-fifths of this population was dead. Of the 225,000 remaining alive there were only 28,764 men, besides 106,254 women over 15 years of age, and 86,879 children. This was almost what it has sometimes been called, a "war of extermination."

Lopez stopped at nothing to keep up the unequal struggle. Regiments of boys between 12 and 15 were sent to the front, and many women fought in the ranks. Women were the sole dependence for the raising of crops, and they also transported ammunition and supplies, even dragging artillery to the battle fronts. Lopez was killed on March 1, 1870, and the war ended.

Reduced to utter helplessness, Paraguay was permitted to adopt a new constitution and set up a government under the protection of her former foes, but a Brazilian army of occupation remained until 1876.

Paraguay has not yet regained the population she had at the beginning of Lopez's disastrous attempt to conquer the neighboring nations, although, because of the scarcity of men, polygamy was legalized for a while in an effort to repopulate the country. The population is now something over 800,000, while that of Bolivia is nearly 3,000,000.

VAGARIES OF GENIUS

Nothing is quite so mysterious as the working of the human mind. A study of men classed as geniuses generally shows them to be a little "cracked" in certain respects. Sometimes their peculiarities have been harmless, in other cases they have led to positive insanity. A few examples will illustrate:

Napoleon was afraid of a cat; Peter the Great was afraid to cross a bridge; Martin Luther imagined that the devil appeared to him and he threw his ink bottle at the fiend; Samuel Johnson, Beethoven and Lincoln at times contemplated suicide.

Among the ridiculous antics of great men may be mentioned the occasional habit of Cardinal Richelieu to gallop around a billiard table imagining himself to be a horse. Adam Smith, the great economist, once walked 12 miles to church, clad only in his nightshirt. Bentham, the philosopher, went bareheaded in winter and wore heavy leather gloves in summer. Many men of genius have been shockingly lax in morals as measured by usual standards.

All this does not mean, however, that being a little nutty is an infallible sign of genius.

A DESERVED MEDAL

Few Americans ever heard of Dr. Charles Guillaume, a French scientist awarded a special medal by the British Physical Society for the discovery of three important metal alloys. Yet one of these, called platinite, is said to save nearly $5,000,000 annually in the manufacture of electric light bulbs.

Another is elinvar, an improved alloy used in the manufacture of watch springs, while the third is invar, a nickel steel product which is practically free from expansion by changes in temperature, therefore of great value in the manufacture of metal surveyors' tapes, clock pendulums and other articles requiring stability of length.

Scientists like Dr. Guillaume are laboring constantly to adapt new forces and new materials to the service of mankind, and the advance of civilization is due largely to their skill and prudence. They are entitled to all the rewards and honors which may be bestowed upon them.

After becoming partially civilized a Congo tribe got heavily in debt and took to the jungle again. We can understand that impulse.

MODERN HOME METHODS

What housekeeping event of the week interests the average woman most?

Washday, according to a national survey just completed, and sponsored by trade associations in the electrical, dry goods, furniture and hardware fields.

Washing machines and ironing machines, in a study of women's interest in various household tasks and appliances, topped the list of labor-savers. Cleaning and dishwashing were named as the first home-making problems of only two-fifths as many women.

"In view of the fact that 40 per cent of all wired homes have electrical household washers, these answers show that American women are thoroughly agreed in their plans for saving time and money in their homes," says J. R. Bohnen, secretary of the American washing machine manufacturers association.

Housewives from every state who have begun electrical washers since January 1, 1932, name a total of eight principal reasons for the change.

This composite housewife, the survey reveals, has abandoned elbow-grease and old-fashioned methods because turning the work over to her machine saves labor, time and money, prolongs the life of linens and garments, gives a sanitary washing, ends the oldtime muss and disorder and removes the possibility of damage and loss of articles.

The back-breaking old washtub and its twin torture apparatus, the washboard, have been banished from a total of 8,800,000 homes.

NOT MUCH CHANGE

Each generation of men from time immemorial has produced its pessimists and cynics, who have viewed with alarm the deplorable tendencies of their contemporaries.

According to these gloomy individuals the downward trend of human morals has always been in evidence, with the skids of perdition well greased.

As a matter of fact, there has been little change in human nature since the dawn of civilization. At any time in the world's history there has been ample grounds for pessimism on the part of those who prefer to look upon the dark side. A writer in the Boston Chronicle in the year 1800 pictured conditions closely resembling those of the present day, from the viewpoint of the alarmist. In an article entitled "Prices Current," he wrote:

"Morals—Failing rapidly.
 "Modesty (female)—Quite out of fashion.

"National Honor—None on the market.

"Public Taxes—In great abundance.

"Religion—No price offered.

"Public Virtue—A contraband article; if discovered would ruin its possessor."

But there was nothing original in the lugubrious reflections of this writer of 132 years ago. The same things, in substance, were said centuries before, are being said today and will probably be said for centuries to come.

SIDELIGHTS

Some time ago a former sailor who escaped from two ships torpedoed during the war was drowned in a bath tub in Memphis. Now we read of Raymond Funk of Shenandoah, Ia., survivor of five airplane crashes, who was struck on the chin by the board seat of a child's swing and choked to death when the rope wrapped around his neck.

When Mike Maricondo was murdered in New York recently, five women claiming to be his wife appeared at the morgue to get his body and two others telephoned. But only one had documentary evidence of her wifehood and she was awarded the remains.

Not that it matters much, but a Washington correspondent declares that President Hoover always wears black socks. His favorite summer costume includes white trousers, a dark blue double-breasted coat, white shoes and black socks which "seem to be silk or near silk."

Speaker Garner seems sure of wielding a gavel at one end or the other of the national capitol for some time to come. He is running for re-election to Congress and also for vice-president. If he is elected vice-president he will preside over the Senate, and being assured of re-election to Congress he will again be speaker if the national ticket meets defeat. That's our idea of playing safe.

Small amounts of the Lindbergh ransom money appear here and there, $95 of the bills having been reported as taken in by banks in the small town of Albert, New Brunswick, a few days ago. All the numbers of the bills turned over to the supposed kidnapper by Dr. Condon in Lindbergh's behalf are known, and this seems to be about the only remaining evidence which might furnish a clue to the criminals. After nearly six months the kidnapping and murder remains a perfect crime.

If present immigration laws had been in force earlier few of our ancestors would have gotten in.

Supporters of Judge Davis Praise Candidate's Record

In the last week of the campaign, it appears that among the most formidable candidates in the fight for Superior Judge, Department One, is John F. Davis (Judge Davis, City Attorney of Burlingame), declare his supporters. They claim the particular reason for the strength of Mr. Davis is due to the fact that his splendid record of twenty years in this county, not only as a practicing attorney and a judge, but also as a leader in county movements such as redistricting, highway zoning and charter study committee, have made him a favorite among a large following of voters. Mr. Davis' record is widespread not only in the First township of this county, where he has held court for two successive terms and retired undefeated, but also in the Burlingame and Millbrae sections, where he has obtained a new supervisorial district and has protected the county highway in the matter of zoning. Added to this, he has been chairman of the Public Improvement and Maintenance committee of the San Mateo County Charter Study Committee, which committee furnished considerable data to the present Board of Freeholders on the matter of roads, highways, and bridges, harbors and sewerage.

Winning over what was said to be the best looking "field" in years, Alberta Costley, 18-year-old blond beauty, was crowned "Miss New Orleans" for 1932 and will represent her city in the famous Galveston revue.

JEFFERSON SOCIAL PROGRAM ARRANGED

At a meeting of the Entertainment Committee held last week, the dance schedule for the Fall Semester was made.

The following dates were approved for the dances:

- August 26—Junior.
- September 16—Senior.
- October 7—Junior.
- October 28—Totem Pole.
- November 18—Senior.
- December 16—Junior.

All outsiders, except graduates, must have bids, which may be had from students. Girls will be in the Senior Room each noon from 12:30 to 1:00 each day of the week in which the dance is to be given to give out bids.

In order to make the social functions given in Jefferson Union high school more pleasant for everyone, the Entertainment Committee, under the advisement of Miss Robinson, has established the following rules governing these functions:

1. The Entertainment Committee must act on the giving of any function whatsoever in the nature of an entertainment, play or dance. This includes any function using the name of the school or the auditorium, except during school time. Any outside activity granted a dance must provide for a sufficient number of chaperones, which must be no less than six.
2. No one will be admitted without a bid except a former student. If anyone leaves the building while a school function is in progress, he will be given a pass, which must be returned on re-entering. No girl shall leave the building during a dance, except in case of emergency.
3. Every school dance must be chaperoned by a committee of teachers.
4. Anyone acting in an ungentlemanly or unladylike manner will be sent away from the building and prohibited from attending any school affairs.
5. No person wearing corduroys or jeans will be admitted to any social affairs of the school.
6. Chewing gum in the auditorium is prohibited.
7. There can be no prize or costume dances of any kind.
8. Marathon or endurance dances are prohibited.
9. Students with student body cards will be admitted for 25 cents; all other boys must pay 50 cents, and all other girls 25 cents.
10. The organization giving a dance must take care of the decorating.
11. Anyone getting bids for people wishing to come to the school dances must be present at the dance. If the person does not attend the dance the privilege of getting any more bids is revoked.

Sweeping through to an overwhelming victory, Marvin Lovstad was elected president of the senior class last Thursday at the first meeting held this semester, defeating Roelof Pauw in an easy fashion. Fred Wilkinson was unopposed for the office of vice-president, and Helen Schalz nosed out Ruth Smith by one vote in the election for secretary-treasurer.

The faculty law requiring a student body officer to have semester grades not below a "C" in any subject fell like a bombshell upon the student government last Thursday, forcing five members of the Executive Committee to resign their offices.

At the opening of the cafeteria last Monday approximately thirty-five students enjoyed a hot lunch consisting of corn bread, Spanish rice, and coffee.

A long table has been placed in the hall outside of the cooking room for the benefit of the "diners."

Miss Hoover states that the girls are doing very well and everything possible will be done to make the venture a success.

Vernon Rehaume, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rehaume of 205 Los Olivos avenue, passed away last Sunday evening, August 21, at the University of California Hospital.

Vernon entered Jefferson in 1929, upon graduating from Woodrow Wilson grammar school. He was a popular student at Jefferson for three and a half years and was a member of the present senior class. While in his sophomore year, Vernon was a member of the 110 pound basketball team. He was born on January 10, 1916, and is survived by his mother, father, and sister.

Jefferson Union high school student body and faculty members extend their condolences to the family.

The third annual essay contest, sponsored by the Deputations Committee of the University of California, will start September 27, and will end October 22. The topic upon which the essay will be written is "What is an Educated Person?" The essays are to be from 500 to 1,000 words in length.

This is the third year that this contest has been sponsored. As Jefferson will be represented it is hoped by all that our school will win the plaque which will have the name of the school and the winner inscribed on it.

Col. Peterson Making an Intensive Campaign

Col. Frederick Peterson, of Burlingame, candidate for the Assembly, today is winding up his intensive campaign of the past several weeks. Col. Peterson has been a resident of San Mateo county for many years, and has been unusually active in civic affairs during that time.

He has organized civic, business and veterans' organizations, and has worked with them in the promotion of movements for the benefit of the entire county. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American and the World wars, and is widely known for his interest in veterans' activities. Col. Peterson is probably one of the county's best known business men.

As his campaign draws to a close today, Col. Peterson, in discussing his plans, should he be chosen to represent this county in the Assembly, said:

"It has been my privilege to reside and do business in San Mateo county for many years. The people of my own community elected me to public office, and it was a pleasure to work not only for their interests, but for the interests of the entire county."

"It has brought me a great deal of happiness to devote my efforts to various civic, business and patriotic movements, designed to make this a better county in which to live. My friends have urged me to seek this office, and should I be successful I promise the best interests of this county shall never be sacrificed."

"If the people of this county send me to the Assembly they will do so knowing I am an experienced legislator, an advocate of all the people and their interests, and one who will be aggressive in achieving recognition for this county."

"In seeking this office I create no issues, I promise no pots of gold at the end of the rainbow, but I do pledge that if elected I shall always meet every issue squarely, I will not pussy-foot, and I will never forget the people who send me to Sacramento."

Few persons take as much interest in their own business as their neighbors do.

From the looks of some of them it is hard to believe that no automobile is more than 30 years old.

State Enforcement of Egg Standardization Law

As a part of a state-wide campaign, a representative of the State Department of Public Health was in Daly City last week instructing local egg distributors, producers and dealers regarding the provisions of the California egg standardization law. City and county health officials are assisting in this work, and as soon as a brief educational program, including the distribution of 100,000 copies of an explanatory digest of the law, is completed, a rigid campaign of enforcement will be conducted.

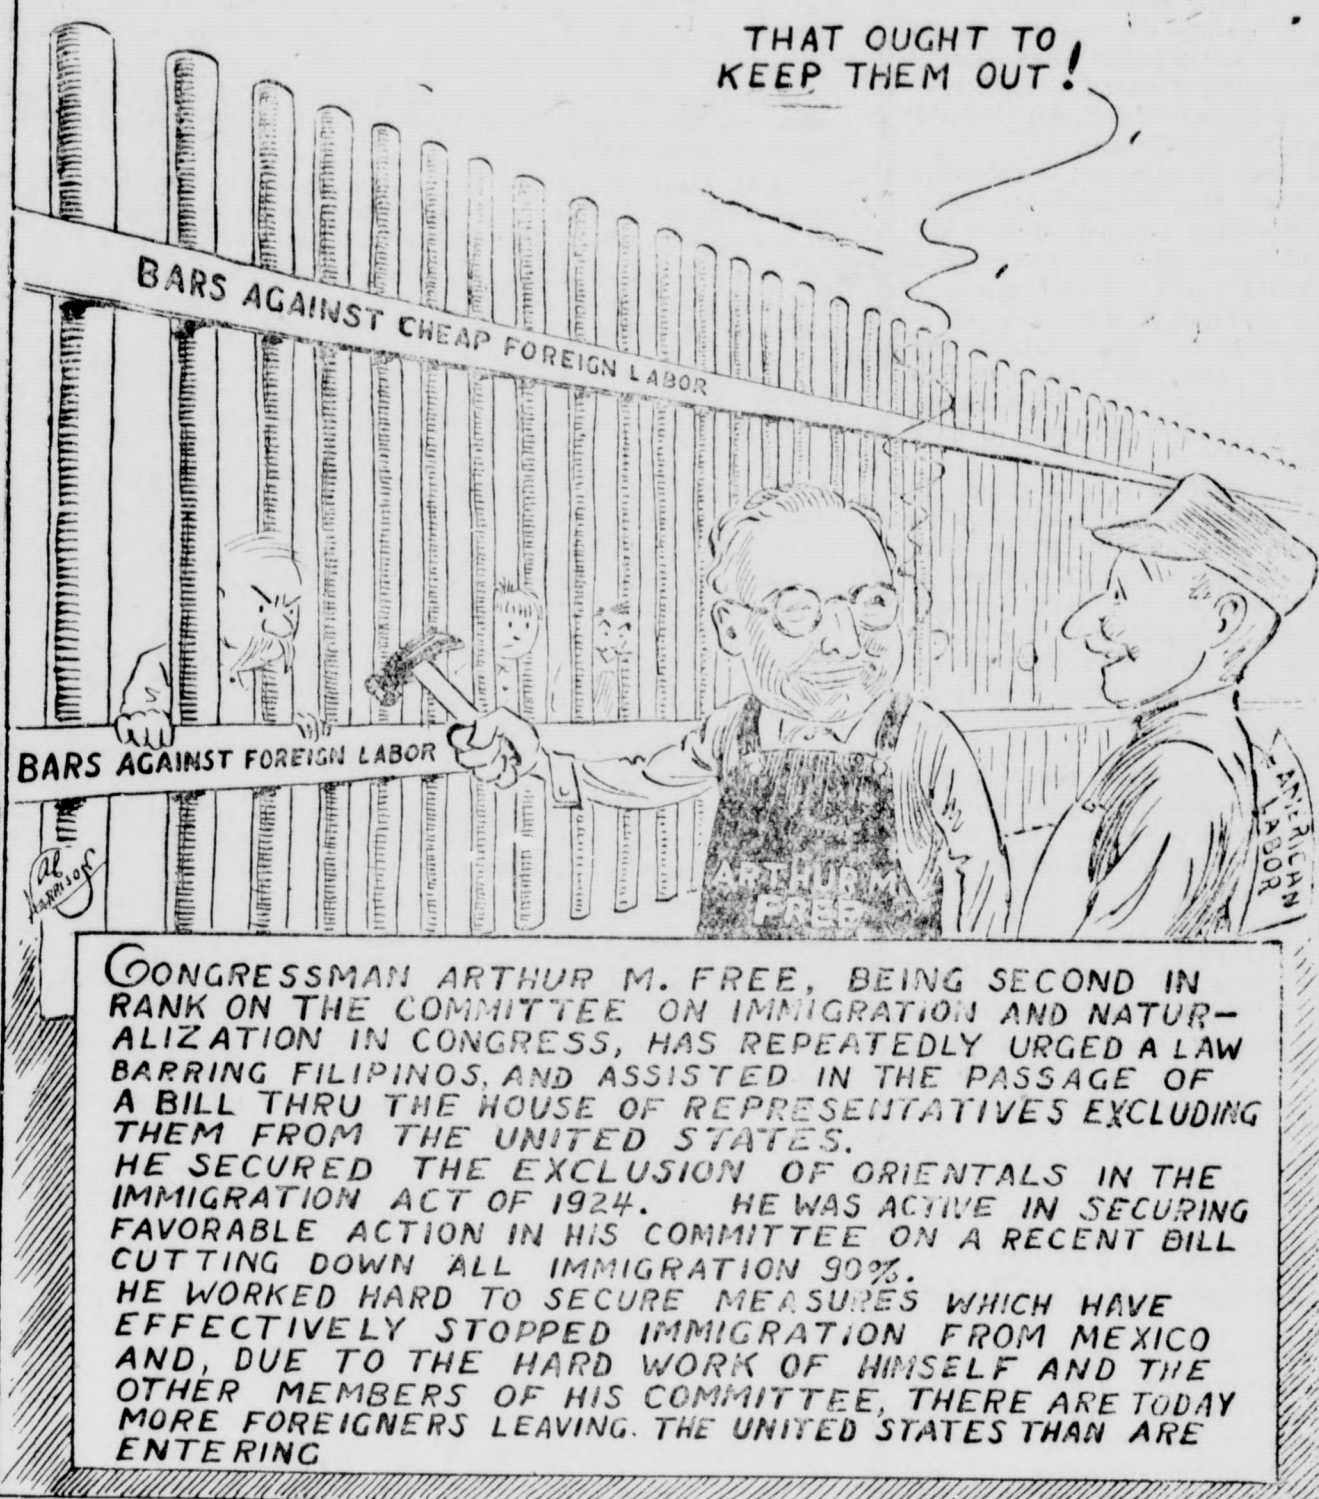

The purpose of this law is to provide a standard by which the consumer may buy eggs and be certain of their size and quality. Poultrymen throughout the entire state have expressed the opinion that this law will stabilize the market and put an end to unfair practices that have demoralized the industry.

Terms such as Specials, Extras and Standards have been defined as quality specifications and weight specifications are quoted for the use of such terms as Large, Medium and Small in designating the size of eggs. Thus, a housewife will know that when she buys "Large Specials" she is getting eggs of the highest grade both as to size and quality. If, however, she buys "Medium Specials," she will receive eggs of the highest quality but of a smaller size. Under the law all eggs sold to a consumer must be properly labeled as to size and quality by placard or otherwise, and terms such as "Ranch Eggs," "Farm Eggs," etc., may not be used unless the eggs are of the grade of "Large Extras" or better. These requirements apply to roadside stands, as well as to grocers and markets, and all violations will be referred to the District Attorney for prosecution.

Anyone desiring further information regarding this law should write the State Department of Public Health, San Francisco.

Apothecaries say a dram contains three scruples, and prohibitionists think if one takes a dram he has no scruples.

Perhaps the meek shall inherit the earth, but the inheritance tax will take it away from them.

CONGRESSMAN ARTHUR M. FREE, BEING SECOND IN RANK ON THE COMMITTEE ON IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION IN CONGRESS, HAS REPEATEDLY URGED A LAW BARRING FILIPINOS, AND ASSISTED IN THE PASSAGE OF A BILL THRU THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES EXCLUDING THEM FROM THE UNITED STATES. HE SECURED THE EXCLUSION OF ORIENTALS IN THE IMMIGRATION ACT OF 1924. HE WAS ACTIVE IN SECURING FAVORABLE ACTION IN HIS COMMITTEE ON A RECENT BILL CUTTING DOWN ALL IMMIGRATION 90%. HE WORKED HARD TO SECURE MEASURES WHICH HAVE EFFECTIVELY STOPPED IMMIGRATION FROM MEXICO AND, DUE TO THE HARD WORK OF HIMSELF AND THE OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS COMMITTEE, THERE ARE TODAY MORE FOREIGNERS LEAVING THE UNITED STATES THAN ARE ENTERING.

ELECT HARRISON W. CALL ASSEMBLYMAN

HE STANDS FOR:

1.—PUBLIC HEARINGS ON THE COUNTY GOVERNMENT BILL.

Until San Mateo county adopts a charter form of government, the salaries of county officials, the number of clerks and deputies is established by the Legislature. THIS ITEM ACCOUNTED FOR NEARLY FOUR CENTS IN THE COUNTY TAX RATE LAST YEAR. The schools and the Board of Supervisors are required by law to hold public hearings on their budgets, and HARRISON W. CALL proposes to hold such public hearings on the County Salary Budget (the County Government Bill), where the voice of the taxpayers may be heard.

2.—REDUCTION IN STATE EXPENDITURES.

The rising tide of state expenditure is entirely out of proportion to the state income. The legislature will face a deficit for the next biennium. The budget must be balanced by reducing expenditures.

3.—REVISION OF THE STATE TAX SYSTEM.

The state tax system was designed in 1910 to collect some $15,000,000. It now collects TEN TIMES THAT AMOUNT. In 1917 and in 1928 we have had special tax commissions to investigate the gross irregularities which have grown up with the present system. Their recommendations have received scant consideration. Sound reasoning, scientific study and calm judgment must prevail at the next session of the Legislature, and Harrison W. Call is the man equipped by training and experience to face the emergency.

Judge Buck's Supporters Are Confident of Victory

San Mateo county's great political battle was drawing to a close today, with the primary election of August 30 just a few days away. Aspirants for public office were planning an impressive close to their weeks of campaigning.

None, however, was more confident of victory than Superior Judge George H. Buck, who has been on the San Mateo county bench for more than 40 years, and whose career in public life was carved with the development of the county from the "cow country" stage to a part of a great metropolitan area.

Judge Buck has been outstanding in public life here for half a century, all of which has been spent in the service of the county, first as District Attorney, and then as Superior Judge. During his incumbency he has presided at all trials that have directed the attention of the nation to this county. He has received enough "fan" mail to draw envy from celebrities of the screen, and treasures among his souvenirs of public life many letters of commendation for his devotion to service from men whose names are household words.

During his campaign for re-election, Judge Buck has left the work entirely to his friends, while he continued on with his court calendar. He acceded to their wishes that he run again, and has left his campaign entirely in their hands. When questioned about campaigning, he said he was too busy to devote much time to anything but his court work.

Nevertheless he feels his friends have worked well on his behalf and believes that he will retain the same confidence the electorate has expressed for him during his long public service. Workers for his re-election share his optimism.

On the eve of one of the greatest campaigns for his office, the Judge gave out the following statement:

"I am confident my long career has merited for me the continued faith of the good people of San Mateo county. I say this in spite of the fact I have done little actual campaigning myself for this election, because I have a duty to perform that supersedes political endeavor. I feel proud of my record here, and believe that nothing I could say would be considered as much, in my desire to continue the work to which I have devoted my life."

All broadcasting stations in Japan are members of one association, under direct government control.

Merchants Make Final Plans for Grand Picnic

The committee in charge of arrangements for the annual picnic of the Daly City Merchants' Association will be held at Oak Cove Park, Sunday, September 4, met last Wednesday night and perfected plans for the greatest outing the people of Daly City ever had. The committee on transportation have finally arranged with the Southern Pacific Greyhound Bus Company for the large band that will accompany the caravan from Daly City to the grounds. There will be a band concert in the afternoon and other music for dancing all day.

This will be a basket picnic, but judging from the amount of good things to eat ordered by the committee, they must expect to feed about 2,000 people. At least there will be no hungry people on that day if they can get to Oak Cove Park. The people are expected to bring their own cups, but coffee, as well as everything else, will be free.

The picnicers will meet in front of the City Hall at 9 A. M., Sunday, September 4, and the place for the picnic is at Oak Cove Park, west of San Mateo about two miles. Reserve this day for recreation.

The committee in charge is a large one, but among them are the following: Mayor H. H. Smith, Andrew Vireno, W. H. Clay, John J. Fahey, Ed Knowles, H. M. Cohn, Joseph Mather, Dr. F. P. Callen, Peter Pavlos, J. Plansky, A. L. Stockton, Julius Twisten and J. J. Sweeney.

W. H. CLAY, Secretary.

Call Claims Support of County Sportsmen

Sportsmen throughout San Mateo county are rallying to the support of Harrison W. Call, candidate for assembly. Call is known among sportsmen throughout the state for the part he took in keeping the Klamath river open to sportsmen. He was one of the leaders in the movement.

An ardent fisherman, Call was one of the guides for the Hoover fishing party in 1928 in northern California.

"Hoover is an earnest fisherman," Call declares, "but he is not an expert fly-caster, or at least he wasn't in 1928."

Many who consider themselves leaders will follow a little white golf ball all day.

"Elect a man you know" will work for your county."

PRIMARY AUGUST 30.

CANDIDATE CROSBY APPEALS TO VOTERS

William Crosby, candidate for San Mateo county's first state senatorship, today appealed to voters of his county to make a careful selection in filling this new post. He pointed out that never before has the county had a Senator of its own at Sacramento, and that especially in these times is a courageous man with the interests of his people at heart needed.

"We have had representation in Sacramento before, only in the Assembly," Crosby said. "Now the people of the county are to have a State Senator. It becomes increasingly important that we send a man there whom we know will not sacrifice the trust of his constituency."

"The county's recent experience with the San Joaquin-to-the-Sea highway route, planned to link the bay and coast sides by means of a fast travel road, should prove a striking example of this need. There are many others. The coast, as well as the bay area, has needed such a highway for years, and when an opportunity did come it seems to have been bungled."

"Representatives of this county in Sacramento, if they were alive to the obligation they owe the people back home, could prevent such discrimination and win for this county proper and fitting recognition. This county could achieve more if it had in Sacramento representation that was interested only in San Mateo county and its people."

"If you choose me to represent you in the State Senate, I give you my pledge that all my efforts will be for you and our county. I promise to be your representative and to work for the many projects of development this county needs, before those projects become public clamor and I would be forced to recognize them."

"I have no entangling alliances that will prevent me from working for you, and I shall remember always that you sent me to Sacramento with the right to expect that I devote all my efforts to your interests."

Suit is Filed to Prevent Photographing of Index

An alternate writ of mandate, ordering County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman to "print and issue" copies of the index to the register of voters, or to appear on September 8 and show cause, was issued by Superior Judge Franklin Swart last Monday on petition of Allan Hill, secretary of the San Mateo county local of the International Typographical Union. Mr. Hill alleged that County Clerk Hinman was violating the political code in photographing his office list to make photostatic copies, instead of having the index printed. The order does not affect the primary election, August 30, but the court's decision will apply to the November general election.

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES TO ENTERTAIN GUEST

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church will hold a special meeting on Wednesday afternoon, September 7, at 1 o'clock. Mrs. H. H. Bell, wife of a well-known California Presbyterian minister, will be the guest of honor. A sale of work will also be held, during which a tea will be served. The ladies of the community are invited to attend.

SOMETHING NEW

Waiting for trains is not so irksome in a Paris railway station, where the company has installed movies for the entertainment of delayed travelers.

Cattle growers in Montana are trying the system of quick-freezing beef before shipment, rather than transporting carloads of live animals to market.

The Germans are making an auto tire in which small stones are imbedded for use on particularly slippery streets, for which Berlin is noted.

Museum workers have solved the problem of making the ears of mounted animals retain their shape by inserting lead into the ear-case of skin.

A single antenna that may be used for as many as 3,000 sets has been perfected by radio engineers for use in big apartment houses.

A sign language of finger and arm gestures has evolved in radio studios, for use in directing performers and technical workers.

From a college entrance examination paper: "Justices of the Supreme Court are subject to good behavior, and if found guilty they are impeached."

A writer advises: "To acquire a voice of authority, saturate yourself with your subject." They often do, when the subject is liquor.

Campaign managers might get some pointers on stirring up enthusiasm by observing Bolivia and Paraguay.

Ask Yourself These Questions Then Vote Tuesday for Your Best Interest

San Mateo county voters have the opportunity next Tuesday of electing this county's first State Senator.

Certainly this selection should be given careful study, because the county needs a man in this post it can depend upon to safeguard the interests of its people.

Aspiring to this office is one candidate, who has been the legislative delegate of this county in Sacramento for six years. In his plea for promotion to State Senator he says he "stands on his record."

And yet this candidate complains because he is being called upon to account for his votes during the past six years. Embarrassing questions are being asked him, and why not?

Surely at this particular time voters have a right to know his record. There is no other way to determine whether he is worthy to be promoted to the higher office of State Senator, to which he aspires.

The friends and supporters of WILLIAM CROSBY, the opposing candidate, take no unfair advantage when they ask these questions:

Would you promote a candidate who (taking only one instance as an example) voted to saddle on the taxpayers that portion of street paving adjacent to tracks now paid for, and justly so, by street car lines and other railways using our streets? (Such a bill, Senate No. 577, aided by the vote of your present delegate, passed the last Legislature and was prevented from becoming a law only by the Governor's veto.)

Do you believe such a move could do anything but increase your tax burden?

Does it strike you as significant that an official of a Peninsula street railway company is advocating the election of this delegate in personal letters to San Mateo county voters?

Would you promote a candidate who told you in his newspaper advertising that he voted for 28 bills favorable to the workingman's interest, and against nine, when the California State Federation of Labor official record reveals only a total of 20 bills vital to labor were considered at the last session of the Legislature?

Would you promote a candidate who advertised he voted FOR 28 bills essential to the workingman's interest, and AGAINST nine, when the Federation of Labor record shows he voted FOR only six such bills, AGAINST nine, and was absent when five others came up for vote. (Actually favoring six out of 20.)

Have you analyzed the legislative benefits this county has received in the last six years?

Do you think that a man's record, like a chain, can be any stronger than its many weak links?

Do you want to restore San Mateo county's representation in Sacramento to THIS county and its people?

If you do—

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

Vincent J. Jaeger, managing editor of the Gallup, New Mexico, Independent, says:

"If you give a man, or a business, character and some publicity, he, or it, will win public confidence.

"If you give him, or it, energy, plus advertising, he, or it, will command credit.

MAXWELL McNUTT SEEKS JUDGESHIP

The people of San Mateo county are about to elect judges of the Superior Court, and thus confer the highest honor in their immediate gift. With profound appreciation of the character of service which one in such position will be called upon to render, Maxwell McNutt, of Burlingame announces: "I submit myself to the voters of this county as a candidate for Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 1."

Mr. McNutt, in his announcement, says: "As a lawyer of more than thirty years general office and state and Federal court trial experience, I feel that I am qualified to discharge the duties involved, and should my fellow citizens honor me by elevation to the high post which I seek, the best years of my life and my most conscientious endeavors will be devoted to their service. The thought always uppermost in my mind will be that the position belongs to the public and that its occupant is a non-political servant."

"It is my good fortune and happiness to have spent a considerable part of my life here, much of my boyhood at Menlo Park, and, for the past sixteen years, in San Mateo and Burlingame."

"If my fellow citizens have the confidence in me to give me their support, I will do my part to the best of my abilities to the end that the trust reposed in me be justified."

Discussing the high cost of medical treatment, a doctor whose great-grandfather was also a doctor explains: "As medicine has become better in diagnosis and treatment, as it enlists more appliances and better facilities, the cost increases. My great-grandfather's patient with an acute appendix probably got a purgative and a mustard plaster, which cost him little—except his life."

We read of a Rumanian woman who at the age of 126 called a doctor for the first time in her life. And died.

Civic Officials Praise Supervisor Hickey

That the contest for Supervisor in the First township is far more than just an issue between two individuals, Mr. Hickey and Mr. Witt, must be apparent to all after reading the following two letters received a few days ago by the present Supervisor of the First township, whose personal and official contact and co-operation with the important County and City of San Francisco, adjoining the First township on the north, has resulted in the securing from that metropolitan district concessions and co-operation worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the First township and San Mateo county as a whole, and representing a great saving to the taxpayers of this county.

It is logical to assume that a man never before in public office, practically unknown in public life, and whose personal contact with public officials and organizations for adjacent areas and political subdivisions is therefore naturally very limited, can, in even an entire term of four years, if elected, establish the good will, influences and personal, together with the official prestige, built up by Supervisor Hickey during nearly sixteen years of official activity along those lines, as the representative of this very important township in San Mateo county.

The following letters are self-explanatory:

Mayor's Office, San Francisco, California, August 19, 1932.

Mr. Thomas L. Hickey.

My Dear Supervisor:

My attention has been called to your candidacy for re-election as Supervisor in San Mateo county. I would feel remiss in my appreciation of your faithfulness if I did not take this opportunity of saying to you how deeply I have felt your co-operative inclinations on matters of concern to San Mateo and San Francisco counties.

I only wish I were in a position to be able to say to the electorate of your district, in a more direct manner, what my valuation is of your services to them. However, I have faith in their judgment, and I am sure that they will give expression to their appreciation of your services on election day.

With profound best wishes for your success, believe me to be,

Sincerely yours,

ANGELO J. ROSSI,

Mayor of San Francisco.

San Francisco, August 19, 1932.

Hon. Thomas L. Hickey, Supervisor.

Dear Tom: I know that you are standing for re-election as Supervisor from your district, and I feel that I would be remiss in my duty if I did not write to you and tell you how much we in San Francisco have appreciated your activities in all joint county problems.

You have represented your people 100 per cent, and at the same time have been a good and true friend to San Francisco. With your past record, and on account of the many interlocked projects with which you are familiar, it is my earnest wish that you be re-elected, so that, working as we have in the past, we may finish such projects as Junipero Serra Boulevard, the widening of Mission street in Daly City, the Ocean Shore highway, Sharpe Park road, and the Livestock Exposition.

Yours truly,
C. E. HEALY,
Assistant City Engineer.

Is it fair to this township and San Mateo county as a whole to let personal grievances on the part of many of the opposition supporters and personal ambition on the part of others, overshadow the main issue, that of the progress of the First township and San Mateo county as a whole, for ALL the people. CONSTRUCTIVE and not DESTRUCTIVE criticism is what every community needs now, more than ever! And the First township is no exception to the rule. Let us continue to BUILD UP! Not TEAR DOWN.

HICKEY FOR SUPERVISOR CLUB.

THOMAS WIEDEMANN,
Chairman.

Shows Increased Trend Toward Better Business

The August Bank of America N. T. & S. A. Business Review, released by the bank's analysis department last week, confirms by facts and figures the increasing trend toward better business so apparent in the last thirty days.

Total bank borrowings from the Twelfth Federal Reserve Bank decreased and reserve balances increased, indicating a healthy condition. Bank debits in California's fourteen largest cities show a 2.62 per cent increase for the month of July.

It is encouraging to note that the trend of wholesale prices on ninety-six articles increased during the months of June and July. Building activity in the metropolitan center of the state is still far below normal, but in many communities progress is shown in building lines worthy of note. Monrovia, Santa Monica, Torrance, Pomona, Bakersfield, Burbank, San Bernardino, Santa Ana, San Leandro, and Eureka all show substantial increases.

Lodges promote a fraternal spirit, and often furnish a dandy alibi.

At last a memorial shaft is to be erected in Greenland to Admiral Robert E. Peary, who after seven or more extended voyages of exploration to that bleak land finally reached his goal, the North Pole, on April 6, 1909. Peary was perhaps the most persistent, methodical and courageous as well as the most successful of all explorers. While he never attained both poles, as did Amundsen and Byrd, he was the first to reach either pole, thereby attaining imperishable fame.

A horse belonging to John C. Hesber, of Seattle, Wash., which had been used to wearing an old straw hat, refused to work recently when the hat fell apart after ten years of continuous service.

Judge Julien Gunn, of Richmond, Va., has refused to move into his new city hall quarters because he objects to the presence of one round pillar and one square pillar in his courtroom.

For forcibly kissing a blonde in his office in Berlin, Karl Zechtem had to pay her 50 marks, while a brunette whom he similarly saluted was given only 20 marks damages.

WHEN YOU VOTE TUESDAY CONSIDER THESE AND YOU CAN'T GO WRONG

Tuesday San Mateo county will go to the polls to fill several important county offices, but none more so than that of Superior Judge.

So closely bound up is the Superior Court with the life and home of every resident, that selection of a man to fill this high post should be given more than ordinary consideration. There might be many ways of analyzing an aspirant to this post, but there are only six around which your decision should center.

We urge that you make comparisons and your ultimate selection after you have considered the following six points of qualification:

1. Character. Has the candidate seeking this office the integrity and unimpeachable character so essential to keep the Superior Court of our county above reproach?

2. Ability. Has the candidate the necessary ability to properly administer a Superior Court from the standpoint of legal education and training?

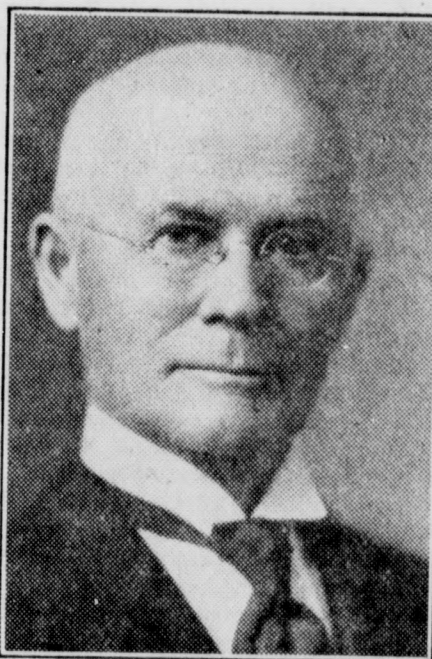

3. Temperament. Has the candidate the temperament you would expect of a Superior Judge? The ability to administer justice fairly and impartially, when emotional appeal might make another course more popular?

4. Experience. Has the candidate had sufficient experience to meet, on a common ground, master legal minds who come into his court, and in so doing safeguard the layman, less familiar with legal procedure, from any sacrifice of his rights to justice and fair dealing?

5. Humanitarianism. Has the candidate that sense of justice and mercy that comes with long association with the trials and tribulations of human existence?

6. Business Judgment. Has the candidate that business sense so necessary in the administration of many business affairs he may be called upon to untangle? Has he the economic understanding that will protect the material interests of his people?

After you have made your analysis upon the basis offered above, we are convinced that your choice will be unanimous, that you will select one man who has proved to you through the years that he meets the requirements fully, and—

SYNOPSIS

In the California sierra Mark King, prospector, sees Andy Parker, a young man, who is on his way to the home of his friend, Ben Gaylor. King and Gaylor share with Brodie knowledge of a vast store of hidden gold. King meets Mrs. Gaylor and is impressed by her daughter Gloria's youthful beauty. He dislikes a house visitor named Graton. With Gloria, King rides to Coloma, intending to "sound" Honeycutt. He finds Brodie with the old prospector, and animosity flares. Their companionship for a day, draws King closer to Gloria. Gloria and her mother return to San Francisco. King attends her birthday party there and is, he feels, cordially received. In a spirit of adventure Gloria accompanies Graton on a "business" trip. At Coloma she finds her father badly hurt. He gives her a message and a package for King, urging him to get them to him at once. Gloria realizes how she has compromised herself by her journey with Graton. He, feeling he has her in his power, proposes marriage, and Gloria, fearing inevitable gossip, apparently accepts him. Graton arranges for the marriage by a country "judge." King comes to the house, unseen by Gloria.

In the house they were waiting for Gloria. Graton paced back and forth, whirling always abreast of the stairs, looking up expectantly.

At last Gloria came. Slowly she descended the stairs, one hand at her breast, one gripping the banister. Her eyes, glancing wildly about the room and at the men to be seen in the hallway, were the eyes of one in a trap, seeking frantically for escape, knowing that there was no escape. She saw three pairs of eyes staring at her, men's eyes, to her the eyes of wild animals; she read what lay in the mind of each: in the little gray man's, the judge's, speculation; in Steve Jarrold's, the jeers of a man of Jarrold's type at such a moment when they fell upon the bride; in Graton's, quickened desire of her and triumphant cunning.

"My dear," said Graton, coming forward as though to meet her and then pausing abruptly and holding back, "this is Judge—Judge Summerling. He will—perform the ceremony, you know. And this is Mr. Jarrold. He brought the judge and will be a witness."

Gloria from the last step regarded the three men as a prisoner might have looked upon jailers coming to drag her to execution. Her lips moved but no sound issued. "Judge" Summerling bowed stiffly and cleared his throat.

Suddenly Gloria began to laugh hysterically, uncontrollably. Graton whipped back and stared at her; Summerling and Jarrold were mystified. She looked so little like laughter! But they could have no clue to Gloria's thoughts. Her wedding! With that insignificant little gray man in his cheap wrinkled clothes to officiate; with that unshaven, leering, dirty man to witness! Holy matrimony! Gloria Gaylor's wedding!

The "judge" was clearing his throat again. "This affair ain't any more regular than it ought to be," he was saying. "Now, just the matter of the license—"

Graton jerked about and glared at him. The "judge" broke off with a vehement clearing of his throat.

"Seem as both parties want to get married," he said hastily, "and as circumstances is what they is—keepin' in mind how circumstances does after cases—well then— Are you ready?"

That "Are you ready?" seemed to explode like a pistol-shot in Gloria's ears. Something within her shrieked: "No, no, no!" Graton had said a quiet "Yes," and was looking at her. She heard herself saying faintly: "Yes."

Graton put out his hand as though to help her down the last step. She made a little gesture, motioning him back. He bit at his lip and obeyed, though with a quick flash of the eyes. Gloria looked down at the step. About six inches high, and yet—and yet where she stood was as high as heaven, down there as deep as hell. She shuddered and moved quickly. Now she stood on the same level as Graton and the others; the physical fact was sinister as though symbolical of the psychical.

Across the room was the fireplace; over it an ornamental mirror. From where she stood she could see only the reflection of the window across the room, the strip of curtain at the side stirring softly in the evening breeze. That breeze came down through the pines; it wandered free; why couldn't she, Gloria, be like that? She thought poignantly of her few days among the pines with Mark King. Oh, the remembered glory of it, the clean, sweet freedom of it.

"Now, folks, if you're ready. Stand side by side—"

"Oh!" cried Gloria.

"Eh? What's that?" demanded the "judge."

She tried to smile.

"I—I think—" She saw Steve Jarrold leering. "The witness," she said wildly. "There is only one, and—"

"It's usual to have two anyhow," admitted the "judge." "But, being as things is a bit irregular and everything, why we'll make one do."

"There's Jim," said Gloria. She did not look toward Graton, but he understood that she addressed him. "Jim Spalding. I'd feel better if someone I knew—if you'd get Jim to come, please."

She knew that she did not care whether Jim Spalding came or did not come; that she was fighting for delay and could not help snatching at any straw, though she knew that in the end she would go down, overwhelmed by circumstance. Circumstance and—Graton. Graton also knew and frowned.

"It will take only a minute," he said over his shoulder as he went. Spalding saw Graton running toward him. "You're wanted in the house a minute, Spalding," he said curtly. "Miss Gloria. She wants you right away."

Graton turned and hastened back to the house, Jim quickening his own pace as he sensed something out of the ordinary. He looked from face to face with keen, shrewd eyes, ignored Jarrold, who said a mirthful "Evenin', Jim," and turned to Gloria for explanation.

"I'm here, miss," he said when Gloria's white face only stared at him. "You ain't sick, are you?"

"No, Jim, I—I am going to be married, and—"

"Married!" Jim looked incredulous and then puzzled as again his eyes went swiftly from one to the other of the three men's faces.

"Yes, Jim. And I want you to be a witness."

Jim flushed up and shifted uneasily. He had never been at a wedding; he did not know what a "witness" had to do.

"Right now?" he muttered. "You're gettin' married right now?"

"Yes," said Gloria wearily. And to Summerling: "I am ready."

"But I ain't!" cried Spalding. He

She Saw Three Pairs of Eyes Staring at Her.

got to the door and started down the hall. "Wait a minute, will you?"

Graton hurried after him, his face hot with rage.

"Come back here, Spalding," commanded Graton angrily. "Whatever you've got to do can wait a minute—"

"You wait," growled Jim. "I'll be back quick enough."

Mark King was awakened by old Jim rushing into the room. He sat up, demanding:

"Has Ben come?"

Jim began chuckling. From a cupboard he began dragging forth his one and only serviceable suit of clothes, dingy black, shiny affairs, but Jim's "best."

"No, Ben ain't back," he grinned at King. "Guess he'll be surprised when he does come. His girl's gettin' herself married. To that city guy, Graton. Right now in the house!"

"What?" King had heard well enough, but that "What!" broke from him explosively.

"An' me, I'm a witness," said old Jim. "Steve Jarrold's another. They got the preacher there an' everything."

He paused a moment and reflected with puckered brows. "What do you think of her marryin' that swab, now? Think Ben's goin' to be pleased? Kind of surprisin', ain't it, Mark?"

King managed a laugh.

"Oh, it's been open and shut all along that she'd marry Graton," he said. "If it suits his womenfolk, I guess Ben will stand for it."

By now Jim was "dressed," and was back at the door.

"Better come along, Mark," he invited. "You don't see a weddin' every day."

"No, thanks," said King.

"Lord, Mark," said Spalding, holding on his heel a moment. "You must of made one all-mighty day of it! You sure do look tuckered!"

King rose and went to the door and stood looking after the swiftly departing figure. Here was the end of everything, it dawned on him. He, who had never looked on a woman, had looked thrice on her and again. He, the one woman man, had found the one woman—and had lost her. Gloria was marrying. Graton. Now. The world was empty. Life was empty. There was nothing. Simply because Gloria had come, had laughed into his eyes, and had gone on. She would be laughing now—into Graton's eyes.

He would never see her again after tonight. Other men had loved and their loves had crumbled to ashes, blown away by the winds of time. But tonight he would see her. The last time. While still she was Gloria Gaylor and not Graton's wife—

He started and hurried toward the house. They were waiting for Jim and Jim had hurried. He came to the porch and he made his way silently around to the living room side of the house. There was a window there; the shade was not drawn; the curtains were blowing back and forth. He drew close and stood, watching.

He saw her. He watched her fingers moving nervously at her sides and his brow contracted with a sudden access of pain. Those fingers had touched his and he had thrilled to the soft, warm contact; he loved them better than he loved life. And soon they would find their way into Graton's.

Not once did he move his eyes from her. Though her head was up, her slim body drooped. Like a little wild-wood flower wilting. So she remained for what seemed a very long time. Then suddenly he saw her body stiffen; her hands flew to her breast. The "judge" hurrying along, had asked:

"And do you take this man to be your wedded husband?"

King did not want to hear the answer; he turned to go. But hear now he must, for though until now responses had been low-voiced, hardly above a murmur, he heard Gloria crying:

"No! No and no and no!"

King stopped like a man paralyzed. Had he gone mad? Then his pulses leaped and hammered. Gloria had cried "No!"

"He is a beast and I hate him!" she cried wildly. "He tried to trick me and trap me. He tried to make me marry him. But I won't! I won't! I'd rather die."

Her voice died chokingly away, and for five seconds it was deathly still. King did not move. He heard Graton's exclamation, "Have you gone mad, Gloria? Think what you are saying—"

"I have thought. I hate you. Go away. Let me go."

Graton's pale eyes must be ablaze with wrath now; his tone told that.

"There's no way out for you. You've got to marry me. I—"

"Take your hand off—"

Her voice broke into a scream. "You're hurting me—"

And now Mark King moved. Before the last word had done vibrating through the still room he was through the window, taking the shortest way. Graton's hand was on Gloria's shoulder; King threw it off, hurling the man backward across the room. Gloria turned to him—

"Mark!" she cried. "Oh, Mark King!"

He put his arms about her, thinking that she was going to fall. For an instant he held her tight; he felt her heart beating as though it would burst through her bosom.

"You won't let him—"

He moved with her to a chair, placed her in it, and turned toward Graton, a look like a naked knife in his eyes.

"By Jings!" muttered old Jim under his breath. "By Jings!"

Gloria sat swallowed up in the big chair; she forgot Graton with the white, angry face; she had no eyes for Mark King or for Summerling, Steve Jarrold or Jim Spalding. She was thinking of another day, two years ago, when she and her mother had been alone in this room. They had been busy with the last touches of furniture arrangement; both tired out with a day of effort, they had come near tears in a verbal battle over the best place for the sole article remaining unplaced. Finally it was Gloria who cried with sudden laughter:

"Oh, what difference does it make? Have it your way, mamma."

Gloria wondered if any other act of her life had had the tremendous import of that sudden yielding to her mother's wishes. If the mirror had been placed anywhere else in the universe, even by a few inches removed from its present abiding place, would there be a Gloria Gaylor in all the world right now? Or would her chair hold quite another sort of person—Mrs. Graton? If she had not lifted her desperate eyes and seen Mark King reflected at the window, how would she have answered that one final question the "judge" propounded? Would she have said "Yes"? Or would it have been "No"? She did not know; she would never know.

"You don't answer!" a voice was saying irritably.

She started. They were talking to her, they had been talking to her, and now she realized that she had heard voices across a great distance. She turned her eyes on Graton, since obviously it was he who insisted on an answer. But King spoke for her.

"Look here, Graton," he said bluntly, "as far as I can see there is no reason why Miss Gaylor should pay the least attention to your effervescings if she doesn't care to."

"I'll ask your opinion when I want it," snapped Graton. "Miss Gloria—"

"You asked me something?" said Gloria. "Pardon me, I didn't hear."

Her aloof reply disconcerted him. Her attitude was spontaneous, unaffected, and hence unconsciously one of polite indifference. Suddenly Graton, fume as he would, had become of not the least importance.

"You said that you would marry me. Not a dozen minutes ago."

"Did I?" she demanded coolly. "Are you quite sure I said that?"

"Look here, Miss Gloria." It was Jim Spalding, who had been ill at ease all along and now had the brains and perhaps the delicacy to understand that this was no place for him. "If you don't need me after all, I'll go."

"And the rest of us with you," said King. "If Miss Gaylor cares to talk things over with Graton—"

Gloria put out her hand impulsively, touching King's arm.

"You stay. Please. Until—he goes."

King inclined his head gravely, not realizing that his body stiffened under her light touch.

"What about me?" demanded the "judge" sharply. "Am I needed or ain't I?"

"I'd say not this evening," King's dry voice answered him. "Good night to you."

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Ten thousand prize hogs were recently "signed" to make an exhibit appearance at the California State Fair, which opens in September.

The finest pack of peaches ever sent out from Yucaipa Valley is now going to market according to horticultural inspectors. J. H. Hales comprise the bulk of the crop.

An estimated crop of 700 tons of high grade walnuts compared to 260 tons handled last year is forecast by Walter Ross, manager of the Anaheim Walnut Association. The estimate is one of the highest ever made at Anaheim, although not more than half the unsurpassed production of 1927.

Will Rogers, actor-humorist-columnist, has been proposed as a new measure of farm relief by Governor James Rolph, Jr. The governor has dispatched an invitation to Rogers to address 50,000 farmers who will gather at the California State Fair on September 7 to celebrate an old-fashioned Farm Day program.

Seven Supervisory districts for Imperial county instead of five, as now, is a change being considered by the Board of Freeholders elected to write a new county charter. The plan contemplated is to give El Centro and Brawley each a Supervisor for the city proper with a third for Calexico and outside territory, the remaining four to be largely rural territories.

President Hoover has changed the name of Crater National Forest to the Rogue River National Forest, it was announced by the United States forest service. The name has been changed because of confusion of the forest with Crater Lake National Park. The forest is situated in southern Oregon, with headquarters at Medford.

Holding that, although certain revisions in the operation of the California trust deed may be advisable, the proposed initiative legislation transforming the trust deed into a mortgage is definitely dangerous to the borrower as well as to the lender, the Oakland Real Estate Board has pledged itself to a vigorous campaign against the measure.

Assessable wealth of Stanislaus County for 1932-33 is $54,504,840, a decrease of but $2,688,145 from the previous fiscal year, it has been announced by Assessor Lowell Garrison. The drop is considerably under that expected earlier in the year, according to Garrison, who declared the 3.3 per cent decrease is exceptionally low for current times.

Red Cross chapters in California which pioneered the way in food production by distributing seed for family gardens are affording striking examples in leadership by conserving surplus crops for distribution to needy families this winter, says A. L. Schaffer, manager of the Pacific area, with offices in San Francisco.

A governor, one chief justice of the Supreme Court, two state treasurers, two secretaries of state, three assemblymen, a senator, state printer and a librarian are among the nineteen persons buried in a Sacramento cemetery lot owned by the state. A search of expenditure records revealed to Director of Finance Rolland Vandegrift the information that the state has long been supporting the lot at $150 a year.

Although stock men have not reported any cattle losses, Jay Bruce, State lion hunter, is finding Calaveras county foothills swarming with the animals. Trailing and killing a large female recently, near West Point, Bruce brought down his eighth lion in the week. It was killed fifty yards from the spot where Bruce killed two fifty-pound kittens. Bruce's record now stands at 440 lions exterminated in the State.

The Sacramento Northern Railway has asked the Railroad Commission for permission to discontinue passenger service between Sacramento and Swanton until conditions justify resumption of the service. Because of the increasing use of automobiles the railroad said that during the last eighteen months it had a loss of $6021 from operations between these two points.

City Manager Ossian E. Carr recently announced an assessment role of $254,361,063 for Oakland, or $3,700,000 short of the estimate made several weeks ago. Unsecured personal property in Oakland totals $3,500,000 and the difference might be found there. There is also $41,000,000 worth of operative property in the city that pays taxes to the state instead of the city.

California industry is increasing its employees. A gain of 2½ per cent was shown in July in the number of job holders, compared to the preceding month, the State Labor Commission reported.

A two-fold tax reduction and equalization proposal involving a rearrangement in the highway building set-up to relieve rural property of a $5,000,000 annual road tax bill was advocated recently for consideration of the next Legislature by the Agricultural Legislative Committee of California.

Orange growers have had plenty of trouble this year from citricola scale. Usually the scale curls up and dies when cyanide gas is poured under the tents in fumigation, but this year it seems to have figuratively thumbed its nose at the fumigators. Never has the scale been so thick in the Redlands district and growers hold the weather responsible. There have been no burning hot days this year to kill off the scale when it is newly hatched.

Two and a half per cent more men had jobs in California manufacturing plants in July, 1932, than in June, a report released recently by State Labor Commissioner Reardon shows. The Labor Bulletin for August records distinct gains in the number of men employed in petroleum production and refining, publishing and establishments manufacturing foods, beverages and tobacco. The report covers 1186 representative factories, employing 133,691 workers.

To Los Angeles from the bay district by auto in a little over ten hours—and not exceeding the speed limit. This will be possible when the new Ridge Route alternate over the Tehachapi Mountains is opened next year, S. V. Cortelyou, district engineer in charge of the $2,900,000 project, announced. Cortelyou reported that the new highway, to be 9.6 miles shorter with only one-fourteenth of the curvature of the present winding Ridge Route, will be opened to traffic late next year.

California's first Aviation week will be observed from September 13 to 25 by the California State Chamber of Commerce. The aeronautical committee of the chamber has asked the support of Governor Rolph, city officials, chambers of commerce and service clubs. Purpose of the week is to show progress made in aviation in commercial lines as well as a weapon of national defense. Army and navy corps are expected to participate in demonstrations in every important city in the State.

All rose bushes entering Ventura county must be fumigated in the vacuum fumigator at the county agricultural commissioner's warehouse in Santa Paula, Commissioner A. H. Call states. This treatment was decided upon when red scale was found on some roses coming into the county. All importers of bushes should take them immediately to the warehouse, Mr. Call stated. He advised the planting of roses during winter months, as the bushes stand the fumigation much better at that time. The treatment is the same as given citrus nursery stock.

Unlicensed wool dealers are defrauding California wool growers of thousands of dollars annually, it was asserted in a bulletin of the State Department of Agriculture's bureau of market enforcement. The bureau gained the arrest in Imperial County of two men alleged to have done unlicensed solicitation there and in Shasta and Tehama counties. C. J. Carey, bureau chief, warned wool growers and other producers to demand credentials issued by the department. The warning applies to producers of livestock, honey, cut flowers, fruit and other commodities.

Martinez tax rate for next year will be $1.10 per $100 assessed valuation, a reduction of two cents under last year's levy. Practically definite decision to this effect was reached at a recent meeting of the city council with a committee of three from the Chamber of Commerce. Decision to reduce the pay of extra help, used mostly on street work, to $4 a day with a three-day week, is largely responsible, it was announced, for the tax rate reduction. The saving in this instance will about take care of the loss in revenue due to drastic reduction of the city's assessed valuation.

A movement was recently started at a meeting of farm and creamery leaders for Tulare county's participation in the "Swallow the Surplus" campaign, promoted by the California Dairy Council to increase milk and butter consumption. Work of enlisting the aid of farm people is being done largely through the farm bureau grange and University Extension Service. It has been pointed out that if America's rural population would consume one ounce more of milk per person so much would be "taken out of circulation" that prices for dairy products would be bound to be higher.

The water levels are rising throughout Tulare county, with streams fed by rapidly melting snows running high in July and record-breaking snow pack still remaining in the high Sierras. Ditch Superintendent C. H. Slaughter of the Tulare Irrigation District declares the greatest benefit may not be realized until next year, so slowly does the water seep through and fill up the huge underground reservoirs. The water level in the heart of the delta district has risen to five feet from the surface, according to recent measurements on the Bodine ranch east of Visalia. Just west of Porterville water is only fourteen feet from the surface.

Should the City Council at Redlands persist in its economy program to the point of setting the tax rate at $1.15 as planned the city will face a deficit of close to $40,000 before the year is out, C. J. Tripp, City Treasurer, warned.

A bond issue of $350,000 for relief of unemployment will be submitted to voters of San Mateo County in November. After learning that 6,000 residents of the county are in dire need, the Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to place the relief measure on the ballot.

POULTRY

THREE GOOD RULES FOR QUALITY EGGS

Keep Them Clean, Cool, and Gather Often.

By R. E. CRAY, Specialist in Poultry, Ohio State University.—WNU Service.

Producing quality summer eggs is not difficult when three simple rules are followed. Eggs should be kept clean, gathered three times a day, and stored in a cool place until ready to ship.

By storing eggs in a cool place as soon as they are gathered, it is fairly easy to keep the size of the air cell to a minimum. This checks evaporation through the shell and helps insure a small percentage of stale eggs.

Clean eggs may be produced by providing one nest for every five hens, by covering the perches with wire, and by confining the birds to the laying house until the majority of the eggs are gathered. Eggs can also be soiled if the hands of the attendant are wet or damp and soiled.

Still another practice, which is one of the most important from the standpoint of producing quality eggs, is the practice of gathering eggs at least two or three times a day. This helps to keep the eggs clean and cool. Experience shows that farmers gathering eggs even five to six times a day are well repaid if they market their produce on a graded basis.

Broilers Fattened Well on Cereal Ration Alone

A test was carried on at the poultry division, Central experimental farm, Ottawa, Canada, comparing two rations, one of which contained meat meal and the other cereal feeds only, for fattening broilers. Equal parts of ground wheat, ground oats and ground barley made up the cereal ration with the addition of 10 per cent of meat meal to the other. Both were fed three times daily, using sour skim-milk as a mixer and mixing each feed one feeding in advance. Two lots of chickens seven weeks of age were used. Thirty-seven birds were in one and thirty-six in the other group. These birds were banded and weighed individually in grams at the beginning, at the end of the first week and at the end of the experiment (fourteen days). The average gain for the two lots was practically identical, the difference being only one-tenth of an ounce per bird.

Double Incubator Service

Double service from brooding equipment netted Mrs. Eli Briner, Oskaloosa, an extra $50 last season, says the Kansas Farmer. Baby chicks were brooded until May 23, and then moved out. After these quarters were carefully disinfected, 61 little turkeys were moved into them. The poulters were hatched right after May 23, just 61 of them. Six smothered, two died from unknown causes and 53 were matured. On November 19 the birds averaged 15 pounds, with a total expense shown at $2 a bird on the books. Sudan and wheat made up the green feed and a mash recommended by the agricultural college was fed. Black head and other turkey troubles were eliminated through the use of a sanitary hailscreen runway. Net profit for the operation amounted to $1.03 for the bird.

Fighting Lice and Mites

For the eradication of lice and mites, keep your poultry house clean, keep fresh litter in nests, and paint the roosts with nicotine sulphate, advises a writer in the Southern Agriculturist. If hens are used for setting, mites will be sure to come, but if you will put 5 or 6 drops of nicotine sulphate in a few places on the straw around the hen in the nest, within four days mites will be gone. If mites are on the floor, put nicotine sulphate on straw in several places. Repeat process when necessary. I have found this practice to be a great labor-saver, as I have raised more chickens this year than I have ever raised, and I did not have to spray the house or dip my hens. You can get nicotine sulphate at seed houses or drug stores.

Watch Hen's Production

That there is a tremendous difference in egg-laying ability has been demonstrated in Ohio by the record of performance flock owners who trap-nest their birds. They find some individuals lay nearly every day, while others lay only every other or every third day, all under identically the same conditions. For a year's laying some few lay over 300 eggs and others less than a hundred. There is most assuredly a difference in chickens.—Ohio Farmer.

Poultry Notes

Charcoal made from hardwood is quite suitable for poultry.

Pullets will not develop into healthy, vigorous birds if their vitality is sapped by overheating and crowding during the night.

The use of dry peat for scratching litter is becoming more general among poultrymen everywhere. When mixed with the hen's droppings this makes a splendid soil dressing.

MERCHANTS WIN EIGHTH GAME

The Colma Merchants won another game last Sunday at Glen Park, defeating the Dartagnans, 11 to 0. Bob Silvestri was in perfect form, allowing the opposition only two safe blows. Silvestri also struck out seventeen opposing batters. Jimmie Crowe also played a great game at second base, handling ten chances without an error and starting three double play. Varni also kept up his heavy hitting by slamming out a home run in the seventh inning to drive two runs across ahead of him.

Calls Aid in Fight for the Highway System

Harrison W. Call, attorney representing the coastside in the fight to have the San Joaquin-to-the-Sea highway included in the secondary state highway system, is in Sacramento today arguing the case before the state highway commission.

"Without a rapid transit highway," Call points out, "the picturesque coastside is barred to tourists, while coastside farmers and dairymen must pay a premium to get their goods to market over the crooked, steep and narrow outlets that exist now."

"It costs as much to ship a truckload of produce from Half Moon Bay to San Francisco as it does to ship it from Watsonville to San Francisco under present conditions," he points out. "Reason demands that this rapid transit highway be built, and this project is the project of first importance in San Mateo county."

Call joined the San Mateo county delegation at the request of coastside civic leaders, and made a stirring appeal to Governor Rolph for his support at the hearing last Saturday.

Call is one of five candidates in the race for assembly. He is a war veteran, a property owner, and one of the most brilliant public speakers ever to offer himself for the assembly post.

Two Pittsburgh businessmen headed for Chicago, after ardently discussing the depression, discovered they had motored east instead of west from Pittsburgh and were 312 miles off their road.

Sentenced to sixty days in the county jail at Michigan City, Ind., by the city judge, James Miller asked to be sent to a state farm so he could work outdoors.

A necklace of pearls worth $35,000, believed to have been stolen, was found hidden in a sewer drain in Boston recently.

More than 3,000 varieties of soy beans were gathered by a government plant explorer in the far East, in order to find kinds suitable to the United States.

Those attending the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lorenz, Mrs. Helena O'Connor, Misses Marge O'Connor, Alice Lorenz, Tess O'Connor; Messrs. Hay, Sorenson, John Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs. Wall. After the christening ceremony a reception was held at the home of the baby's grandmother, Mrs. Helena O'Connor, on Evergreen avenue, where about forty relatives and guests gathered to extend their best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Wall and baby Audrey Lorraine.

STATE COMPENSATION FUND PAYS $132,975.23 STATE TAXES

The State Compensation Insurance Fund a few days ago mailed to State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson a check for $132,975.23 in payment of its premium tax. It is so unusual for a state organization to pay taxes to the state that few people know that the State Compensation Insurance Fund is one of the largest taxpayers in the state. The Fund is operated on a co-operative basis and pays all its own expenses, including taxes.

'THE SECOND COMING' IS PASTOR'S THEME

"What the Bible Teaches About the Second Coming of Christ," will be the sermon topic in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. In these days of economic uncertainty many people are wondering what next? The Bible reveals a Divine plan for the human race. Nothing is happening in a haphazard manner, but history today as in the past reveals the working of a over-seeing creator. The Presbyterian church is located at Hanover and Evergreen. In the evening at 7:45 a gospel service will be held, following a meeting for Young People at 7.

PARENT-TEACHERS' MEETING IN SALADA BEACH SCHOOL

The first meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of Salada Beach this season was opened by the President, Mrs. Pope. The flag salute, the minutes and business of the meeting were taken up. Mrs. Regan, one of the P. T. A.'s active members, gave the members a delightful surprise when she made and put up the curtains in the hall of the school.

The members plan to hold a dinner next Saturday night in the school-house. Everyone who wishes to come is urged to buy his ticket as soon as possible or make reservations at Anderson's store in Salada Beach. The receipts are to go towards paying for the stove which has recently been installed for the benefit of the school children and social times held in the community. Come and bring your family.

After the meeting the parents enjoyed going to school. They took their children's names and went through their daily classes until refreshments were served.

NEWS BULLETIN

To all Old Glory Post Recruiters: An important announcement from National headquarters is to the effect that fifteen thousand Marines and Navy men were eligible to the ranks of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States by action of the Bureau of Navigation authorizing campaign badges for those who served in Nicaragua during the period of August 27, 1926, to July 1, 1929.

A recruiter is a high class salesman. His sales talk may be based on the following facts: In prescribing qualifications for membership in the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, the organization has simply observed the same distinctions created by the government itself in its official forms of recognition commemorating distinctive service. Membership in the V. F. W. must be earned in the same manner as these government awards—by services properly rendered in the line of duty. By virtue of this fact, every man who served his country ashore on foreign soil, or afloat in hostile waters, is entitled to membership in the V. F. W.

CITY LIBRARIAN ANNOUNCES THE ARRIVAL OF NEW BOOKS

It will be of interest to the many borrowers of the John D. Daly library to know that Mrs. Jean O'Rourke, librarian, has added many of the latest novels to the shelves. Among the latest of fiction books are: "District Nurse," by Baldwin; "Keeper of the Keys," by Biggers; "Good Earth," by Buck; "That Girl From New York," by Corliss; "Old Wine and New," by Deeping; "Second Hand Wife," by Norris; "Younger Sister," by Norris; "Greek Coffin Mystery," by Queen; "The Storm," by Stribling; "Pre-War Lady," by Wildeman; "Spawns of the North," by Willoughby; and "Black Daniel," by Willies. Non-fiction, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," by Buck.

ROOKIES WIN ANOTHER GAME

The Daly City Rookies won another baseball game last Saturday, defeating the Funston Boys' Park team by a score of 12-0. Collins Holcomb, the Rookies' pitcher, allowed only three hits and walked one man, his control being almost perfect. The Rookies staged a rally and made eight runs in the sixth inning. Donati led off with a single, Hanchen followed with a double and Welch hit a double to score two runs; Campbell popped to left field, Welch going to third after the catch; Heggum hit a home run over left field, and Holcomb followed with another home run. The rally ended after Ray Bernet hit a home run with the bags loaded. Next week the Rookies will disband for the season, after they play the Glen Park kids a double-header next Saturday.

Mrs. Lorraine Wall and daughter Audrey Lorraine were among the guests on Wednesday afternoon that attended a reception at the home of Mrs. Lewis, on Bellevue avenue, the occasion being in honor of Mrs. Marie Poole, of Bellevue avenue, a recent bride. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent by all present.
